Directors Notes

Welcome to “Lights Out Over London”, where the locals do their bit to muddle through tough times, and the Bull and Bush pub has never been so popular!

This Home Front story begins in 1942 and ends in 1945. From blackouts to “Grow your Own”, “The Home Guard” to unexploded bombs, join us on a hilarious journey, where families and friends stick together, and humour and popular songs are a big part of life. It’s what’s getting folk through the war!

This is my first time as a script writer and director and despite Covid scuppering the very best attempts to stage this show, (it had to be cancelled more than once), determination for “the show to go on” won in the end.

So, a big thanks to absolutely everyone who contributed to bringing “Lights Out Over London” to the stage for the very first time.

A special thank you goes to Judith for giving me invaluable support and for her skill as Assistant Director and MD. I am immensely grateful. A big thank you also extends to the Choreography Team - Sarah, Georgie, Judith, and Mandie for their energy and creativity; and to the Scenery and Stage Crew - Michele and Mandie, who have provided an authentic 1940s set. Thanks is also due to Georgie for her fantastic commitment.

Last, but not least, cheers to my family and friends who supported me, from proof-reading my script to sewing silk knickers for one of the more surreal scenes in the show. You know who you are!

Tonight, The Peacehaven Players are bringing my assortment of amusing characters to life. Throughout, they’ve kept calm and carried on with a sense of humour not unlike that shown during the war! They’re “well chuffed” to be performing for you once again.

So, all that remains to be said is, “Put that light out and get ready for a sing song and knees up down at the Old Bull & Bush”!

Enjoy.
